

Libya's foreign trade during the period (2020- 2023)

Research and Statistics Department

A Brief Summary of Foreign Trade

During (2020-2023)

The foreign trade sector is of great importance for both developed and developing economies, as it is the best approach to exploit the available economic resources and to provide the operating requirements necessary for the production process and capital flows.

During (2020-2023), the foreign trade sector in Libya witnessed fluctuations due to the political conditions and the state of political division, the frequent suspension of the production and export of crude oil, and due to the conditions that the global economy went through as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and its adverse effects on the supplies and prices of commodities, which had a direct impact on the volume of trade exchange of Libya with the rest of the world.

The following is an analysis of the most important indicators of foreign trade for the Libyan economy during the period 2020-2023:

First: the volume of trade exchange:

The volume of trade exchange (exports + imports) between Libya and the outside world during the period (2020-2023) recorded an average increase of about 24.0%. This was due to the exports' growth, which averaged 47.7%, where the volume of trade exchange for the year 2023 increased by 3.3% compared to the year 2022, which was due to the decrease in oil exports by 12.6% as a result of the decline in crude oil prices in the global markets, and the increase in merchandise imports by 15.6%.

To determine the importance of foreign trade in the Libyan economy, the ratio of the volume of foreign trade (exports + imports) to GDP (the degree of external exposure) showed a continued exposure of the national economy to the outside world, as it recorded a decrease in 2020 by 28.1%. While the degree of exposure increased in 2021 to 101.4%, then decreased to 92.9% in 2022, and then decreased to 92.2% in 2023, which indicates that the national economy is greatly affected by changes and external conditions.

First: Exports:

The Libyan economy relies heavily on the hydrocarbon sector as a primary source of income, such source is regarded as a depleted natural resource, this source of income is affected by the conditions of the global oil markets, where oil exports constitute more than 95.0% of the total exports, which made the national economy continuously vulnerable to strong shocks as a result of the sudden and significant changes in the oil sector locally and internationally.

Geographical Distribution of Exports:

The table below shows the geographical distribution of Libyan exports, and it illustrates the high relative importance of Libyan exports to the European Union countries, as they averaged about 65.4% of the total exports. The reason of the high relative importance of national exports to the countries of the European Union (the eurozone) was due to the characteristics of the economies of these countries as industrial countries that depend to a large extent on crude oil. Libyan exports to Asian countries come in second place, as they amounted during the period to an average of about 17.5% of the total Libyan exports abroad.

Commodity Composition of Exports:

The data relating to the commodity composition of national exports presented in the table below showed the extent to which exports of mineral fuels, fuels and related materials acquired the largest share of total exports during the period (2023-2020), constituting 94.0% of total exports, which indicates the undiversified exports of the national economy, this is because of the weak structure of domestic production, which makes the economy vulnerable to fluctuations in oil production and its prices in international markets, while other exports accounted for 6.0% of total exports, most of which are precious metals and their products (gold) and common metals (scrap).

Second: Imports:

More than 85.0% of the local market needs of all sectors and individuals of consumed and capital goods such as machinery, equipment, raw materials and intermediate goods needed for the production process, are imported from foreign markets.

Geographical distribution of imports:

The European Union countries are the main source of Libya's imports, as their relative importance amounted to an average of about 35.2% of the total imports during the period (2020-2023), as the value of Libya's imports from the European Union countries recorded about 4.3,6.1,8.0, and 7.3 billion dollars, respectively, during the reported period. This is due to the geographical neighborhood, which plays a major role in increasing the volume of trade exchanges between Libya and the countries of the eurozone, while the Asian countries, Arab League States and other European countries accounted for the remaining proportions, and the data indicates the weakness of trade exchanges between Libya and African countries, Australia, and New Zealand.

Commodity composition of imports:

The imports of the products group (metal products, electrical machinery, equipment, recording, broadcasting and sound equipment, prepared foodstuffs, beverages, vinegar, and tobacco) ranked first in terms of total commodity imports during the period (2020-2023), accounting for 48.2% of total commodity imports, while the imports of the products group (products of the plant kingdom, products of chemical industries and related items, and transport equipment) ranked second in terms of relative importance, constituting 18.4% of the total merchandise imports, while the imports of products of other groups accounted for the remaining percentage, which represents 33.4% of the total merchandise imports.

This reflects the weakness and inability of the local market to provide many commodities that individuals need, which leads to an increase in the degree of external exposure and an increase in demand for foreign exchange.

The following table illustrates the imports, classified according to commodities, during the period (2020-2023):
